

March 2019

Greetings Division 45!

The mentorship committee for Division 45 is very excited to share with you our 2019 Virtual Mentorship Program! This year we are offering a wide variety of mentorship topics using a podcast and video format. Starting March 10th, you can expect to hear two new episodes (YouTube and podcast) with our mentors each week. Follow us on Soundcloud to access the podcasts. Our tentative list of topics includes: Conducting Research and Grant Writing, Receiving and Providing Supervision, Teaching Cultural Diversity in the Classroom, Navigating Academia (how to choose the right university or position), Navigating Microaggressions as Psychologists with Marginalized Identities, Applying for Internship, Navigating Clinical Careers Psychology Licensure, LGBTQIA Psychologists, Research and Relevant Issues, Psychologists from International Backgrounds, School Psychology, Psychologists as Leaders and Activists, International and community-based research/clinical practices, and Entering the Job Market.

In addition to sharing their wisdom via the podcast, our mentors have graciously offer three half-hour individual virtual mentorship meetings with interested students. This will be an opportunity for you to ask personal questions as well as to develop a meaningful relationship with seasoned mentors within our network. If you are interested in being connected with one of mentors for an individual virtual mentorship meeting, please fill out the link connected to our mentorship announcements. You can find the announcements via our list serve, twitter, and or Instagram accounts.

Our first welcome episode can be found here:

We hope that you find our podcasts helpful for your professional and personal development. Feel free to reach out to one of us: Krystal Christopher, Chun Tao, Yue Li, or Desa Karye Daniel, at division45mentor@gmail.com for any questions or feedback!

Sincerely,

Division 45 Mentorship Program Committee
